

INVOICE

Attn:

Re: Payment for Temporary Boyfriend Services Rendered

Dear _____,

It has come to my attention that after _____ of dating me, you have made a swift return to your old boyfriend, whom you had previously dated for _____.

Under relationship statute #3468, your “bounce-back” action grafts on to me the classification of Temporary Boyfriend -- in which case I reserve the right to bill you for services rendered during our _____ relationship. I am exercising that right with this invoice.

As you may infer from the above, had you left me for a subsequent male -- whom you previously did not have a romantic relationship with -- then this invoice would not have validity. However that is clearly not the case, as you have indeed returned to your ex-a-hole.

Please find below an itemized account of Temporary Boyfriend services rendered, and expected payment. I have totaled at the bottom not only for your convenience, but also because you're a total fucking idiot:

TOTAL $

Please remit payment upon receipt of this invoice. Do not attempt to claim non-receipt, as surveillance equipment will confirm otherwise. I would sign off “Yours truly,” however I’m clearly not truly yours. Bitch.

Pay Now